

75 Years ago .....

This year we mark the birth of the Rover P4 - the “Cyclops”, first post-war Rover model and the start of the long line of “Auntie” Rovers.

1951 ROVER P4 75 SALOON

When the first P4 was introduced at the 1949 motor show, the styling with the dramatic cyclops-eye front grille was a complete break with Rover tradition and did not please all Rover aficionados. In fact, the car was designed along the lines of the American Studebaker. Mechanically it was more conventional, being based on the previous short-lived P3 75 model.

To mark this important event in the history of Rover, there will be a celebratory lunch :
